

Transformer Cabinet Mural Project 2010
Artist: Susannah Franklin
Location: In the alley behind Pine Street Lofts at Jefferson and Pine

My choice for the transformer mural project is the Prickly Pear Cactus. This cactus is found here in Colorado, and is especially beautiful in the late spring on the Pawnee Grasslands. I felt this was a good choice for this particular alley, because this alley lacks anything living, so this painting was my way of making a flower garden for those living in the lofts.

I also was drawn to this plant because it makes an interesting repeating form with the rocks and the clouds and I thought it would be a dynamic design well suited for the transformer box format. I intend to wrap this design up and around both boxes.
