Fort Collins, CO is Featured in Where to Retire Magazine

HOUSTON, (February 21, 2005) – Where to Retire magazine, the only magazine in America geared to helping people with retirement relocation decisions, has selected Fort Collins, CO to profile as a top retirement spot in its March/April issue.

According to Where to Retire editor, Alan Fox, Fort Collins has many of the qualities that are important to today's retirees. "Rich history, continued education opportunities, an active lifestyle and a friendly community draw retirees to this picturesque town in the Rocky Mountains. Fort Collins' residents enjoy biking and hiking on the city's many trails as well as a popular senior center with indoor swimming, billiards, theater, track, woodshop and classrooms. The city is home to Colorado State University and with all the recreation, cultural events and opportunity to learn, many retirees in Fort Collins are just as active as the local college students," Fox said.

Each year nearly 380,000 people move across state lines to retire. Generally healthier, better educated and more affluent than retirees who stay put, relocating retirees bring significant economic benefits to their new states and hometowns. Nationally, two dozen
