City of Fort Collins Required Recycling Variance Request Form

Background

Pursuant to Section 15-413 of the Fort Collins Municipal Code, any commercial or multi-family customer receiving solid waste (trash) collection services shall subscribe to a collection service for recyclables that is not less than one-third of the total collection volume by a collector licensed to provide such services within the City. Collection volume (including both solid waste and recyclables) is based on the size of the containers and the service frequency. Any person who owns or operates a business or multi-family complex may apply for a variance with the following provisions:

- Space constraints
- Self-hauling of recyclables to a recycling drop-off center
- Utilization of a separate licensed recycling collection provider
- Failure to generate recyclables
- Only available location for recycling bin is not safely serviceable by hauler

Upon receipt of this request for variance, the Director of the Environmental Services Department or their designated appointee shall either approve or disapprove the variance. If the variance is approved, the applicant will not be required to obtain recycling collection services for a period of 5-year from the date of approval. If, after that period, the constraints on which the variance was based still exist, the applicant may submit a request for an additional 5-year variance.

If a variance is granted for a customer not generating recycling of at least one-third (1/3) of the volume of waste generated, but the customer generates at least ninety-six (96) gallons of recyclables per week, the variance will require that recycling service in the volume of recycling the customer generates be included as a part of solid waste collection services.
