

2011 Residential Environmental Program Series.

Adventures in Composting

Wednesday, May 11, 7–9 p.m.
Drake Centre, 802 W. Drake Rd.

(Pre-registration is not necessary for this free program.)

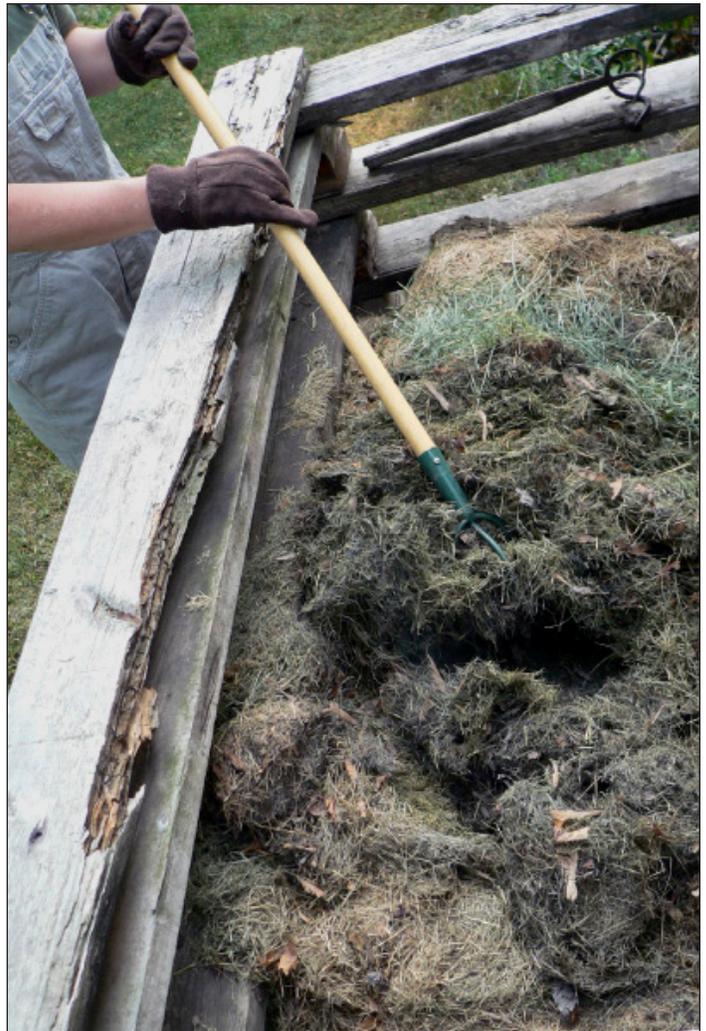

Discover useful composting techniques from local experts, including a presentation by CSU Organic Agriculture Coordinator Addy Elliott. Learn the science behind composting and how to get started. Participants are encouraged to bring questions and share composting experiences.

Other topics will cover:

- ingredients that make the best compost
- compost bin selection
- basic soil chemistry to improve composting on a backyard scale
- compost application as a healthy, organic amendment to garden soil

Learn how easy it is to get started recycling organic waste products to produce an amazing soil amendment—right in your backyard.
